19th Century Long Pine Refectory Table from Portugal

19th century long table from Portugal, crafted in pine and likely originally used as a refectory table. Turned legs and clean lines give the form a straightforward, timeless look, while the top carries a deep aged patina developed through years of use. The surface shows varied shades of color along with knots, old separation of planks, scratches, gouges, cracks, and signs of old water stains, all contributing to the rich worn character of the piece. Note some residual signs of old wormholes, all dried and inactive as seen in photos. Restored, strong, stable, and ready to use. Floor to skirt height is 25 inches.

Please refer to professional photos for clear understanding of color, condition, and details; photo lighting, individual monitor display and home lighting all impact how item is viewed. Photos are part of item description, please ask questions or request additional photos of specific areas if needed.
